

Cash During Pregnancy: A Promising Approach for Improving Health Inequities at Birth

Monday, May 20, 2019

4:00 pm-6:00 pm

Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco

101 Market St. San Francisco, CA

Registration* and refreshments 4:00 pm | Presentations and discussion 4:30pm-6:00pm

Please RSVP: <http://bit.ly/CashApproach>

For our May Collaboratory, join us in a discussion on the racial wealth gap and promising approaches to addressing its implications for perinatal health. We are excited to co-host this discussion with the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco and Asset Funders Network.

Come hear about:

- The pattern and historical underpinnings of the gender and racial wealth gap.
- A pilot effort in San Francisco to provide cash support to pregnant Black and Pacific Islander women.
- New findings from research in Manitoba, Canada, where cash support during pregnancy was shown to reduce adverse birth outcomes.

Speakers

Deborah Karasek
PTBi Transdisciplinary
Postdoctoral Fellow

Marni Brownell
Associate Director, Research and a Senior Research Scientist at the Manitoba Centre for Health Policy

Jhumpa Bhattacharya
Vice President of Programs and Strategy at the Insight Center for Community Economic Development

Nathan C. Nickel
Research Scientist at the Centre and an Assistant Professor in the Department of Community Health Sciences at the University of Manitoba

Zea Malawa
Pediatrician and public health professional, Expecting Justice

Bina Patel Shrimali
Senior Researcher in Community Development at the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco